

ANIMEALS

During our regular home visits, we learned that some of our clients were sharing delivered meals with their pets because they simply could not afford to purchase pet food. Research clearly supports the health benefits to seniors from having a companion animal. We did not want our meal recipients to have to make a decision between feeding themselves and feeding their precious pets.

The Animeals program was developed in response to this need.

Through Animeals of Meals on Wheels, we solicit donations of pet food from individuals in the community, supported by and collected at the local veterinary clinics and animal hospitals. No monetary donations are accepted for this program. Pets of meal recipients are provided with a regular supplemental delivery of food through these donations.

Excerpt from Meals on Wheels Newsletter, Winter, 2016:

I must admit, at first I did not understand Animeals. 'Why are they spending all this time and energy on pet food,' I wondered?

Then I met the people: the meal recipients who could not leave home, whose pets are like family to them. These pets provide the companionship that people no longer provide. And so, of course it made sense they will not let this furry friend go hungry, even if it means sharing their own meal.

Thanks to the generosity of this community, especially the local veterinary clinics and their patrons, Meals on Wheels is able to distribute dog and cat food to our meal recipients to supplement their personal supply. No program monies are spent on this service.

We are very grateful to those who donate pet food, and also to the Vet Clinics who graciously provide space to collect the donations.
